① The receipt displays the foreign exchange rate and the total in US dollars and the customer's home currency. The customer simply marks an X next to their home currency, enters the tip and total in their home currency, and signs the receipt

② At the POS prompt, the server confirms the customer's currency choice and enters the tip amount in the customer's currency. The POS calculates the transaction totals in both currencies

③ The final amount on the receipt matches the amount on the customer's credit card billing statement.
